TOWSON THEATER - 1929 - 512 York Road, Towson. Built in part on grounds of defunct Towson Tavern; functional building with brick walls and flat roof. The facade facing the street contains a parapet over the lighted marquee and incorporates some classical forms in sculptured concrete: arches in relief and a dentiled cornice. The auditorium is wider at the street front and is reached via a long corridor, originally lined with photos of 1930s film stars. Built by the Towson Theater Corporation and added to the tax ledger as new in 1929.
